CURRENT ACTIVITIES

I am currently in-between jobs. Until August 2016 I was employed by the NPO Living Lands initially (2015) as their Landscape Mobiliser and in 2016 as their Knowledge Broker and Collective Social Learning Researcher in the Kouga and Kromme catchments (Langkloof) in the Eastern Cape province of South Africa. I set up and managed a base for Living Lands in the Langkloof, initiated the process of engaging with all the stakeholders (farmers, farmworkers, local residents, Municipal officials, community organisations, NGOs, and various Government Departmental Officials (Agriculture, Environmental and Water Affairs), academics and funders), identifying potential projects to collaborate with them on, designing projects, raising funding, finding new staff and students to assist with the work, inducting and supervising them, and coordinating the team and the implementation of projects.

Although I was very successful with this work and set up Living Lands and its partners to take this process forward, I elected to leave, recover after a period of intense stress, and re-assess how I wanted to continue to live and work.

INTERNATIONAL EXPERIENCE

I have lived in a number of countries including England, Ireland, Zambia, Malawi, Swaziland, Tristan Da Cunha (South Atlantic Ocean) and South Africa.

I have also worked on socio-economic studies and assessments in South Africa, Madagascar, Egypt, Mozambique, Malawi, the Central African Republic, and Sierra Leone.

LIFE GOALS

To love myself, be happy and well, become fully conscious of myself and master of myself – able to choose to act in compassionate, considerate and loving ways to myself, others, all living beings and Mother Earth.

Through my example, sharing my learning and the work that I do, help others to reconnect to themselves, to one another and to Mother Earth in ways that meet everyone’s needs.
